WELCOME TO THE 26th ANNUAL HISTORIC FESTIVAL AND DOORS OPEN

The Edmonton and District Historical Society is pleased to present the Historic Festival and Doors Open Edmonton from July 3-10, 2022
in the greater Edmonton region.

Communication

The activities we choose to fill our free time go a long way to creating balance in our lives while connecting us to our communities. Culture and art, sports activities, recreation or exploring our many parks and historical sites all play an important role in keeping us active while reflecting our cultural values.

Museums, historic sites, businesses and community organizations in the greater Edmonton area have come together to host tours and events that allow a glimpse into our past and the impact it's made on today. Additional events may have been added since the publication of this guide and will be listed on the website.

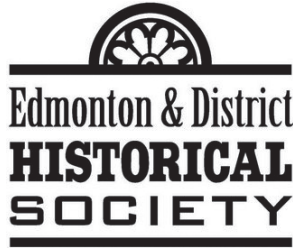

Visit www.historicedmonton.ca for more information or call 780.439.2797.

We would like to give special thanks to...

CKUA: A Legendary History and A Bright Future

by Natalie Cook, Communications Coordinator, CKUA

CKUA's "new" Edmonton location in the restored Alberta Hotel on Jasper Avenue.

"From the early days of University of Alberta extension classes via the AM dial to being a global voice for Alberta's diverse music, arts, and culture scene via the internet, CKUA has been using the power of radio to bring people together and tell the stories of our community and our heritage for almost 95 years." - CKUA CEO Marc Carnes

CKUA's beginnings were not glamorous, but they were dramatic. The original transmitter tower for CKUA was built near Pembina Hall, on the University of Alberta campus, using two tall farm windmill towers. The borrowed and purchased equipment that made up the broadcast centre allowed announcers to share the news on November 21, 1927, that "CKUA is on the air!" Emma Newton played "God Save the King" on the studio's second-hand grand piano, and photos of the occasion, lit by a magnesium powder flash, set the burlap drape fringe on fire.

From the outset, CKUA was closely connected to the University of Alberta and deeply rooted in the wider Alberta community. The people leading the station through the 1920s, 30s, and 40s embraced their roles as educators and community builders, wanting the station to reach and inspire people, some of whom were isolated by geography or circumstance. Organ recitals were broadcast from the U of A's Convocation Hall. Programming included faculty lectures, a farmers' program, weather reports, a Homemakers' Hour, children's programs, concerts by the University Radio Orchestra, debates, radio dramas (with sound effects!), and broadcasts from the Alberta Legislature.

CKUA also offered live broadcasts and remote descriptions of many university sporting events, including hockey, basketball, and football. On October 13, 1928, CKUA carried the first play-by-play radio broadcast of a football game in Canada when the U of A Golden Bears and the Edmonton Eskimos faced each other. CKUA reporters and the brothers of St Joseph's & St. Stephen's Colleges called many popular inter-varsity football games.

As time passed, music replaced conversation and lectures. The popularity of CKUA's musical programming can be attributed to hosts who curated programs thoughtfully, inviting audience requests and playing music from a variety of styles and eras. This remains a point of pride among CKUA hosts and listeners to this day; the music offered daily is unique, diverse, and often distinctly located in Alberta's arts and culture scene.

CKUA's library is legendary, and it has grown over the decades to contain more than 1.5 million pieces of recorded music and spoken word materials, and over 500 hours of historical interviews. The library, the knowledgeable hosts, and the enthusiastic audience all contribute to a rich environment where local and emerging artists are supported, no two days (or hours) are alike, and a diversity of musical styles is celebrated.

CKUA's history in broadcasting has included challenges that many community-based radio stations have faced. Its current position as a donor-supported broadcaster with charitable status is hard-won. From 1945 to 1974 CKUA was operated by Alberta Government Telephones. The crown corporation, Alberta Educational Communications Corporation, later known as ACCESS, assumed ownership of the station in 1974. In 1994, Access sold the CKUA network to the non-profit CKUA Radio Foundation for ten dollars. And, as many know, the station went temporarily silent in March of 1997, only to be revived five weeks later by an enthusiastic fundraising campaign that raised more than a million dollars in one month.

What helped CKUA rebound and endure where other community organizations and radio stations have disappeared? It's all about the people. Tenacious station managers and staff who rolled up their sleeves to manage technology, people, and budgets. Intelligent hosts who understood that to do the job well, you need to be both interested and interesting. Musical greats like Tommy Banks, kd lang, and Corb Lund, who championed the station in their public-facing roles. Volunteers who worked in the pledge room, stuffed envelopes, or took students on tours of the building. And, of course, donors. Currently, seventy percent of the station's funding comes from listener donations.

As CKUA makes plans for its centenary in 2027, we can look back with gratitude while also looking forward with confidence and hope. We now have robust downtown broadcast studios in both Edmonton and Calgary, with plans for more digital and on-demand content. As technology changes, and people access music and media in new ways, CKUA is adapting and looking forward. No matter how people access CKUA, we'll remain committed to vibrant music and compelling programming.

Each week, CKUA airs interviews with musicians, authors, playwrights, festival directors, filmmakers, and visual artists, to highlight their work and share what's happening in the local arts scene. Technology is changing, new hosts are being welcomed by our audience, and we're always thinking of ways to connect people to a vibrant, inclusive community that values music, arts, and culture. We know our presence and our work are only possible because of community support and the generosity of donors. We hope that tuning in to CKUA through your local transmitter or online at CKUA.com will inspire you, encourage you, and connect you to the arts community.

All of us at CKUA were thrilled to hear that the theme for this year's Doors Open festival is "Communication." CKUA has always cherished its role as a community hub; communication and connection are at the heart of the work we do. Congratulations to The Edmonton and District Historical Society, and thank you for including us in the 26th Annual Historic Festival and Doors Open festivities. We can't wait to celebrate with you.

SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉALOGIQUE DU NORD-OUEST (SGNO): French Canadian Ancestry Research Centre

La Cité francophone

102, 8627 91 Street, Edmonton

780-424-2476; info@sgno.ca

SGNO is a non-profit organization that focuses on the history and ancestry of Canadian families and their genealogies.

The society has 30 years of experience. Its research centre is located directly above Café bicyclette in La Cité francophone in the Bonnie Doon area.

Although most of its library resources are focused on French Canadian ancestry, the centre has resources to search lineages from other countries. Volunteers are bilingual (French and English) and would be pleased to guide you in your research. Hope you can include us in your tour.

THEATRE NETWORK: Roxy

10708 124 Street, Edmonton
www.theatrenetwork.ca

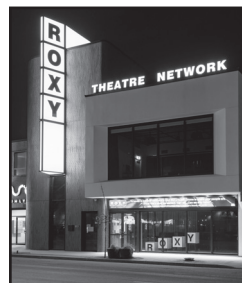

D

On January 13, 2015 The Roxy Theatre burned down. Theatre Network moved to a temporary venue, styled The Roxy on Gateway later that year, producing work there until the Covid-19 pandemic shuttered its doors in 2020. From 2015 to 2022, Theatre Network took on the challenge of rebuilding our beloved Roxy Theatre. With the support of all three levels of government, and many generous donors, the company broke ground in June 2019. The New Roxy Theatre was designed by Group2 Architecture & Interior Design and built by Chandros Construction, and opens April 14, 2022.

Join us for a behind the scenes tour of our new space.

WINDSOR PARK URBAN POLING GROUP: Early Homes & People - Windsor Park & the U of A Ring Houses

University Club Parking Lot V
(U of A surface parking lot north of Windsor Car Park on 116th St)
780-993-3671; esolez@hotmail.com

The Windsor Park neighbourhood and the University of Alberta began to be developed in the early 20th Century on River Lots 3 and 5 respectively in what was then the Town of Strathcona before it was amalgamated into the City of Edmonton prior to World War I. By 1930 there were 10 houses in the northwest corner of campus and 9 houses across Windsor Park Road (now 116th Street) in Windsor Park. The 4 remaining Ring Houses are slated for removal this year. Heritage buildings evoke special memories that connect people to the past. They are focal points that tell the stories of the people and places that shaped our city and province, providing a deeper understanding of how we grew from a prairie and agricultural landscape to the vibrant community and large urban university we know today. Join us to visit some of these early homes, find out more about the people who lived in them and their contributions to the growth of the province, the city and the university.

VALUING EDMONTON'S LEGACY

BUILT HERITAGE RETAINS AND CONVEYS A SENSE OF PLACE, COMMUNITY HISTORY AND TELLS THE STORY OF EDMONTON.

To recognize this value,
the City of Edmonton developed the Historic Resources Management Program.
Under this program, buildings and structures with historic significance are identified. Those that apply for designation as a Municipal Historic Resource are eligible for funding to protect and maintain their original character.

There are currently 154 designated Municipal Historic Resources and nearly 1000 historic resources on the Inventory eligible for designation in Edmonton. These can be found on the “Register and Inventory of Historic Resources in Edmonton”.

Visit edmonton.ca and search for historic resources to learn more.
